Top ten richest football club in england 2019

Lionel MessiPhoto By Aitor Alcaldo/Getty Images Financial services firm Deloitte has once again released its Football Money League, charting the huge profits of Europe's biggest football clubs. The English Premier League dominates Deloitte's ranking with nine clubs in the top 20, one fewer than Deloitte's top 10 last year. There are also four Italian clubs, three Spanish clubs, three German clubs and one French club. Deloitte's report said total revenue from the top 20 rose 6 percent to 8.3 billion euros ($9.42 billion) this year, a new world record. There is also a new leader as Manchester United has been knocked off its top spot since 2018. October 4, 2020 By Sourav football fans worship their icons from the bottom of their hearts and connect with the emotions they pass to some extent. With the rise of fandoms in football, the value of each team has also increased. However, the increase in the value of the teams did not actually affect the ranking. Some of the teams went down a point or two... while some teams have soared to the top. Here we bring you the top 10 richest football clubs in the world by 2020. These are the latest rankings and have been updated in 2020. Read on to find out more. Football is not just a game, it is a cult and one of the most popular sports in the world. It is a cult followed by billions of people across the land. Footballers are treated as much as a celebrity in this era, and this has obvious reasons. This year Deloitte also came up with a list of the Football Money League. And the most shocking news for football fans out there is that Manchester United's ten-year reign is over. Since the 2012/13 season, Real Madrid have experienced a significant increase in their revenues and made better returns this year. They got second place last year behind Manchester United, in terms of revenue. Their rivals, Barcelona, secured second place on the chart this year, reporting more than 600 million euros in turnover in 2019. 10. Tottenham Hotspur - $483.5 million Revenue in 2019: 428.3 million euros (379.4 million euros or $483.5 million)Previous revenue: 35 euros 9.9.Tottenham Hotspur earn 10th place on the list of the richest football clubs in 2020 due to their remarkable increase in revenues of 69 million pounds compared to the previous season. This year, their total revenue was 428.3 million euros. Spurs have made 116.5 million pounds from their commercial partnerships and merchandising. Most of which came from their jersey sponsor AIA and technical sponsor Nike kit. They have brought in 226.6 million pounds from broadcasting rights this season. In addition, they also had a common match day 85.2 million pounds from ticket sales last season. According to a recent Report by Deloitte, the club may be a witness income in the future. And this can happen because of their stable performance in the Premier League and the UEFA Champions League. 9. Arsenal - $495.8 million Revenue in 2019: 439.2 million euros (389.1 million euros or $495.8 million) Previous revenue: 487.6 million euros Total valuation: 2.04 billion euros Richest club-Arsenal with total income of 439.2 million euros this season, Premier League football club Arsenal ranks ninth in the current ranking of the richest football clubs in the world. They faced an estimated 48 million pounds drop in revenue than their previous earnings season. The Gunners earned around 206.9 million pounds thanks to their broadcast rights and 111.6 million euros through ticket sales. But the bulk of their total income came from their commercial deals worth 120.7 million pounds this season. A major contributor to their revenue growth this year, Emirates and Puma, have also increased the overall value of the club's brand. But their failure to qualify for the UEFA Champions League for the 2019-20 season will affect their future ticket sales according to Deloitte. 8. Chelsea FC - $570.9 million Revenue in 2019: 505.7 million pounds (448 million pounds or $570.9 million) Previous revenue: 428 million pounds Total valuation: 2.3 billion pounds Richest club Chelsea with 505.7 million pounds generated income, English Premier League side Chelsea earns eighth place in the current ranking of the richest football clubs this season. Like some other big clubs, the Blues have also faced significant revenue increases this year. They have earned a whopping 191.8 million pounds from their commercial ties, all thanks to their new deal with drinks firm Carabao. In addition, their kit supplier Adidas and jersey sponsor Yokohama Tyres have also contributed well to the club's overall revenue. Chelsea have received 83.4 million pounds through ticket sales on match days. They also earned 230.5 million euros on broadcast rights. The recent signing of Alvaro Morata for 60 million euros has also helped the team to take part in a record high total of 1.52 billion euros in 2019. 7. Liverpool FC - $579.9 million Revenue in 2019: 513.7 million pounds (455.1 million pounds or $579.9 million) Previous revenue: 424.2 million euros Total valuation: 1.95 billion euros The richest Liverpool club-Liverpool became one of the most popular EPL sides in 2020, all thanks to the brilliant performance of Egyptian luminary Mohamed Salah. The Reds have reached seventh place on the list of the richest football clubs right now with a total income of 513.7 million pounds. Unlike several other clubs on the list, Liverpool have seen a commendable increase of almost 90 million pounds compared to the previous season. They were awarded a total of 251.3 million pounds through a revised broadcast rights deal. Liverpool also made 170.8 pounds from their commercial deals with shirt sponsor Standard Chartered and kit sponsor New Balance. The club also received 91.6 million euros through ticket sales on match days. With several stars on set up at the club, football experts now hope to make Liverpool's overall score in the future. 6. Paris Saint-Germain revenue - $611.5 million in 2019: 541.7 million euros (479.9 million euros or $611.5 million)Previous income: 486.2 million Total valuation: 975 million euros Richest club-Paris-Saint-Germain French League 1 club Paris Saint-Germain or PSG currently ranked sixth in our list of the richest football clubs in 2020. They have seen a huge spike in previous season revenues of 486.2 million pounds to 541.7 million pounds this season. Despite the fact that the French side has earned an astonishing 313.3 million pounds from its key sponsor Emirates and kit supplier Nike. In addition, they have also earned 127.8 million pounds thanks to their broadcast rights this season. PSG generated 100.6 million pounds per match-day revenue from ticket sales last season. The purchase of Neymar for 230 million euros has significantly increased the overall valuation of the French club this season. Their few costly signings this season also gives a hint of their desire to dominate the European football scenario in the near future. 5. Manchester City - $641.6 million Revenue in 2019: 568.4 million pounds (503.5 million euros or $641.6 million)Previous Revenue: 5 euros 27.7 MillionTotal Score: 2.4 billion pounds Richest Club-Manchester City Two Premier League clubs made it into the top 5 richest football clubs by 2020, as Manchester City also pushed up the list, except Manchester United. With a total income of 568.4 million pounds this season, the Sky Blues deserve fifth place in the current rankings. Thanks to sponsorship deals and commercial transactions, the club generated revenues of 265.7 million euros. Of which a significant amount came from their main sponsor Etihad Airways and kit sponsor Nike. The club also made a 63.9 million pound income through their ticket sales on match day. And through their broadcasting rights, Manchester City have made 238.8 million pounds more this year. The saga of winning the English Premier League season in 2018/19 will certainly help the club earn more in the coming seasons. 4. Bayern Munich - $710.3 million Revenue in 2019: 629.2 million euros (557.4 million euros or $710.3 million) Previous revenue: 587.8 million euros Total valuation: 2.7 billion euros Richest club-Bayern-Munich German Bundesliga club Bayern Munich ranks fourth in the ranking of the richest football clubs this season. This year, they had revenues of a total of 629.2 million euros, which is about 42 million euros more than in the previous year. The German side have won their domestic championship seven times in a row, which in turn has increased their total ticket sales this season. But their poor performance in the UEFA Champions League also made quite an impact on their overall income according to Deloitte Football Money League. Bayern Munich 348.7 million euros thanks to deals with Deutsche Telekom's sponsor and technical kit supplier Adidas. They also sold their broadcast rights for 176.7 million pounds and brought in 103.8 million euros more through ticket sales. 3. Manchester Revenue - $751.8 million in 2019: 666 euros Previous revenue: 676.3 million euros Total valuation: 3.4 billion euros The richest club-Manchester-United with a total income of 666 million euros this year, Manchester United has secured the third place in the list of the richest football clubs of 2020. Even while securing third place, the Red Devils are facing a nearly 10 million pound drop in revenue from last year. They brought in 316.1 million pounds of commercial income through sponsorship deals and merchandising. Manchester United has earned a decent amount of revenue from its Chevrolet shirt sponsor and technical sponsor Adidas kit. They have also earned 230.4 million pounds from their broadcasting rights this year. In addition, this season, Manchester United have seen revenues of 119.5 million pounds per match through ticket sales. According to Deloitte Football Money League, winning the UEFA Europa League a year ago significantly affected the club's revenues this year. 2. FC Barcelona - $779.4 million Revenue in 2019: 690.4 million euros (611.6 million euros or $779.4 million)Previous revenue: 648.3 million euros Total estimate: 3.6 billion euros Richest Club-FC-Barcelona with revenue of 690.4 million euros this year, Lionel Messi's club Barcelona earned second place in the list of the richest football clubs of 2018/19. They have lost top spot at their rival club Real Madrid even after earning almost 42 million pounds more in revenue than the previous year. The Catalan side generated a commercial income of 322.6 million euros through sponsorship deals with kit supplier Nike and the sponsor of the T-shirts. The club has made almost 223 million pounds this season through its broadcast rights. Revenue from the match also touched 144.8 million euros, as they saw a significant increase in ticket sales. Although the sale of Neymar for 200 million euros did not affect the club's revenues in 2019, it increased the significant amount of the club's total value to 2.98 billion euros. 1. Real Madrid - $847.7 million Revenue in 2019: 750.9 million euros (665.2 million euros or $847.7 million)Previous revenue: 674.6 million euros Total estimate: 3.8 billion euros Richest Club-Real Madrid with total income of 750.9 million euros this year, Real Madrid currently ranks first in the list of the richest football clubs in the world. After spending almost six seasons in second position, Real Madrid regained their glory and reached the first position. And strangely enough, even their rival Barcelona reached a better ranking than last year. This year, Los Blancos recovered slightly and finished second. They have earned a total of 315.5 million pounds through commercial deals with their jersey sponsor Emirates and kit supplier Adidas. Real Madrid also generated 251.3 million pounds through their broadcast rights and 143.4 million pounds ticket sales. But, their overall score almost remains the same, even after the departure of super-expensive footballers such as Cristiano Ronaldo.
